

Graduate Program: East Asian Studies

(Note: This is used for mock job/graduate school interview [educational purposes] in Dept. of ENG, FJU, 2014)

(source: <http://www.grad.ucla.edu/gasaa/pgmrq/eas.asp>)

Program and School	East Asian Studies M.A. Program, University of California, Los Angeles
Written Test & Requirement	<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. GRE: General2. Letters of Recommendation: 33. The University's minimum requirements4. A statement of purpose outlining the applicant's background, proposed program of study, and future career goals. Students must complete the third-year level of coursework in either modern spoken Chinese, Japanese, or Korean (through course level six) or demonstrate and document the equivalent level of ability.
Education	Applicants with East Asian field experience or a degree in another field are given special consideration.
Program Specialties	The program recognizes three areas of specialization: China, Japan, and Korea. Comparative fields may be incorporated into an area of specialization with consent of the student's faculty advisor.
Courses to Take	Nine courses are required for the degree, five of which must be graduate courses. Of the nine courses, at least five must be in the student's area of concentration including one survey course chosen in consultation with the Graduate Studies Chair. At least one course should be in a cultural area other than the area of concentration. No more than two courses in the 500 series may apply toward the nine courses and only one of these courses may be counted toward the minimum of five graduate courses required for the degree. Courses used to meet the language requirements do not apply toward the total course requirements. International students may also be required to take English as a Second Language 33A, 33B, 33C, 34, 36, or other English as a Second Language courses. Comprehensive Examination Plan: The comprehensive examination consists of the submission of three research papers (at least one seminar and two upper division papers) and evaluation of them by the ad hoc committee chaired by the student's faculty advisor.
[URL]	http://www.ling.nthu.edu.tw/NTHU_Linguistics/Admissions.html

